nightlight is a source of embarrassment to him and also to his family.

But there is one radical, unavoidable, and what will many times prove to be conclusive, advantage possessed by the volatile nightlight. That is its cheapness. A dollar will purchase a substantial, though unadorned, nightlight of metal. One of these or other wicker material costs more, but still not enough to compel the buyer to indefinitely put off the liquidation of his hoard of bills. Panama, on the other hand, call for greater outlay. They range in price from $3.50 for plain garments of sheet metal to $5 for better ones of the same material. French furniture is handsome and tempting, and are to be had for from $4 to $7 per unit. Pongee silk will cost from $8 on a good deal higher. If a man has $20 which he is anxious to invest in a luxurious while-silk pajama he can easily have the high gratified. Good hand-made pajamas, however, can be had, at from $3.50 to $5 each. The demand for the new garments is not yet very great in this city, but it is increasing rapidly.
